The editors of these Proceedings have many debts of gratitude. Funding was provided by a grant from the Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council of Canada. We are pleased to thank the Council for its generosity and continuing confidence.

In a more personal way, the editors wish hereby to thank Dr. Douglas Brent for his expertise and untiring assistance in using desktop publishing techniques to produce camera-ready copy from the various manuscripts.

We also wish to thank the Niedersächsische Staats und Universitätsbibliothek, Göttingen, for permission to reproduce on the cover of this volume its engraving showing students of rhetoric listening to a reading of passages from the letters of Cicero.
